

Something very weird happened yesterday, even by the standard of the COVID crazies.

UK Prime Minister Boris Johnson announced the end of masking and social distancing requirements as of July 19.

Shortly afterward, someone on Twitter warned that this was a bad move:

"My brother has just tested positive for Covid. The delta variant. He has been double jabbed. How on earth can Johnson go ahead with relaxing the rules on the 19th July? It's madness."

Now before you start thinking of replies to this person -- and there are many -- I want you to notice something. Apparently this guy has a lot of brothers:

-

IT'S COMING HOME 🇬🇧 @CLEANSHEETPERSON · 2h

My brother has just tested positive for covid. The delta variant. He has been double jabbed. How on earth can Johnson go ahead with relaxing the rules on the 19th July. It's madness. @BorisJohnson

4 1 3
-

Jop Stanley @wenispeaner · 2h

My brother has just tested positive for covid. The delta variant. He has been double jabbed. How on earth can Johnson go ahead with relaxing the rules on the 19th July. It's madness. @BorisJohnson

3 1
-

JayX2 🇬🇧 (temporary suns fan) 1-0 @PhilJonesFC2 · 3h

Replying to @BorisJohnson

My brother has just tested positive for covid. The delta variant. He has been double jabbed. How on earth can Johnson go ahead with relaxing the rules on the 19th July. It's madness. @BorisJohnson

19 4 24

Well, whatever happens to this guy, at least he'll have a big family by his side!