

Before I finish, let me change the subject a bit because the great Ian Miller has another devastating chart.

We were told that New Mexico was doing so well because it had "listened to the science." Then when Iowa lifted its restrictions, we were told it would be a disaster area.

Well, here's what the death numbers look like for the two places:

I wonder if the media will follow up on this story!

So much of the narrative is falling, and yet the suppression of dissident voices -- voices that have been right! -- persists unabated.
