

Today's issue is for old times' sake.

Fully half of the people who read my emails today started getting them during the Covid years. At that time I was trying my best to understand what was going on, and other people also trying to make sense of things stumbled on my videos and eBooks, thereby landing them on my subscriber list.

So remember the old days, when I'd share a chart that told the opposite of the story the liars were trying to tell us -- and no matter how much you showed it to certain people in your life, it made no difference at all and they went on believing fact-free nonsense?

Well, for old times's sake, I've got another one for you, courtesy of Dr. Kevin Bass:

Alongside that chart, which he shared a few days ago, Kevin added this commentary:

Sweden had the loosest COVID-19 restrictions in the developed world.

California had among the harshest.

Sweden's life expectancy continues to increase to historic highs.

California's has not recovered.

Lockdowns understandably turned a lot of people against science.

Still, those in the medical and scientific communities won't apologize.

They do not care about public health.

They never did.
